

CID:

WELCOME TO YOUR COMMUNITY!

Welcome to your new position and to the strong, vibrant and exciting New Zealand international development sector. By joining your organisation you automatically become a member of the Council for International Development, which brings together Kiwi organisations involved in international aid.

CID exists to support and promote effective high quality aid and development programmes, with the vision of achieving a sustainable world free from poverty and injustice. It is a point of engagement and coordination for the sector on national and international policy issues. It also keeps members in touch with the latest in development thinking and events both here and overseas.

CID facilitates networking amongst our organisations and across the globe. CID’s humanitarian network, (NGO Disaster Relief Forum, NDRF) is an active group of members involved in humanitarian response and emergency management issues, geared toward collective learning. You will be busy in your new position - that is a given in the world of NGOs! To keep up to date with what’s going on in the sector, follow us on Facebook and Twitter, and bookmark our website. You can also get the latest delivered straight to your inbox by signing up to CID Weekly: our highly rated newsletter packed with news, events, policy developments, and research. Email us to join our subscription list.

CID also runs a range of training days and talks throughout the year. Your organisation will be notified of these, and you can keep an eye on the CID website for more information. We also livestream our public CID talks through Facebook, which remain archived on our group page. We’d also love to hear your ideas for talks, or about what CID could provide to best support your organisation

Towards the end of each year CID puts on an annual conference for the sector. This is a day to hear from key names about pressing issues, take part in cutting-edge workshops, and network with people across the board of INGOs in New Zealand, including government and corporate actors.

We look forward to working with you!
